to the river and swept straight eastward for air squares. It stopped only when it reached Lake Michigan and could go no further. When the fire began its backward move-ment from the place of its origin it picked up the store of J. P. Kissinger & Co., the Mil-waukee Art Glass Works, the Wellauer Block, six stories high, with the Milwaukee Chair Company, a vacant building owned by the Pitster & Vogel Leather Company and the wholesale grocery store of Houndy, Peckham 2 Co.

Trust supply of the State, at 70 to 83 Buffalo Street.

Dozens of frame buildings along Milwaukee and Jefferson atreets, between Detroit and Chicago, as well as on Buffalo and Chicago atreets, were licked up as if they had been merely outlines of paper. All these buildings were consumed within half an hour of the time when the flames leaped over Broadway. Suddenly the wind shifted. It was northeast when the first slarm rang, it was now almost dee south, and then fire cut out a trond avenue of destruction towards the Milwaukee Eliver and Lake Michigan. In its path lay the hig ireight sheds and the yards of the Onloago and Northwestern road, together with the round-house and its valuable contents of rolling stock. The end of the freight shed at the corner of Chicago and Jefferson streets, was the first to ignite, and the flames soon apread to every part of the yards.

Therein long trains of freight cars attood on the Northwestern tracks, and when a bliow of fire leaped across Van Buren street to the south end of the ried at house a million dollars worth of railroad property was doomed. Seeing that the fire must surely reach the gas works, the men rapidly forced air into the Lanks, then sank them and fied for their lives. As a result, Milwaukee will have its usual gas supply within a day or two.

Hansen's malt-house, within a few rods of the border line of Lake Michigan, with an adjoining elevator made a brilliant display when they caught. The clevator suddenly burst into flames, and trom the lower windows to the top of the high ventilating house it, was soon ablaze.

A howling blast of wind sent the flames across the street, and in an instant the mait house, with its tail tower, broke out in spots of flickering fire. The elevator maintained its form long after the hottest period was passed, and from the lower floors the burning grain poured into the street like a cataract of fire. Then from the windows of the large mait house and from the eaves came jets of bright green gas from the heated mait.

A large ventilating wheel in the face of the super actory was burning and whiring away like a luge St. Catherine's wheel.

The heat was intense within a block of the mait-house and it was a close call for the re-tori-house of the gas Company.

In Brooklyn there were registered yesterday 34,370 voters, a decrease from the total of corresponding day in 1888 of 3,514. The grand total for the three days, however, is 164,253, or 7,943 more than the total of the first three days in 1888. This latter fact is adduced by politicians as an evidence of the interest of voters, on the ground that they had registered on the first two days, not waiting.

Mr. Croker this forenoon received returns from the registration in this city. He expects a registration to-day of 50,000 more. At the Bureau of Elections it is estimated that to-day's registration will exceed any fourth day of previous years, and that the figures will probably reach 60,000. The fact that it is a haif holiday, it is believed, will bring out the voters in force.

A lew vacancies were reported this morning among the luspectors of Election, and were promptly filled by the Police Commissioners, who were in session during the foreshoon.

Telephone Experiment That Was Success in Australia. An amusing account is given by an Anstralian correspondent of some experiments in connection with long-distance telephony on the new copper wire between Sydney and Melbourne. The copper wire extended only as far as Albury. a distance of 388 miles, the remaining 190 miles being completed by an iron wire from Albury to Melbourne. The speaking to Albury was remarkably clear, says an exchange, voices being easily recogmodern imitation of antiquity?

The Hunnings transmitter and double pole Bell receivers were used. Some lu-dicrous results were obtained by the induction on the main line from some of the railway telephone lines-telephones connected from signal box to signal box and station to station, &c., for railway and station to station, &c., for railway working entirely, but very often used, especially on Sunday, when there is practically no traffic, for purposes of private conversation. One conversation between a man and a girl was especially amusing. After a few preliminary passages of an interesting nature the couple, unconscious of listeners, began "blowing lisses" to each other through the telephone and afterwards describing the effect produced.

First we heard a girlish giggle, followed by a faint smacking sound, and then a

First we heard a girlish giggle, followed by a faint smacking sound, and then a shrill troble voice asking with keen solicitude: "Did you get that one? Shall I send you another?" answered by a gruff bass, saying: "Wait a bit till I've recovered from the first one," and so on. The girl then sang "In Oid Madrid," which came out remarkably clear and was as much appreciated apparently by the person for whom it was intended as the listeners on the free list.
